2 - What two or three elements of this course contributed most to your learning?

Response Rate 6/12 (50%)

- Very energetic class, which makes it easy to be engaged. I enjoy the in class examples and trying to work through them.
- The homework was a really good resource for preparing for the exams. The in-class pop quizzes also contributed to my learning because it called for me to apply what we had learned that day or the previous day in a challenging way.
- The lectures are great. The homework helped me a lot. The office hours are also helpful.
- Professor Nie was able to give us real world examples of complex concepts that helped simplify them. Additionally, reading the textbook alongside the course material presented was extremely useful.
- 1) The class examples were extremely helpful. 2) Professor Jun walking us through the derivations really cemented the functions we used. 3) Professor Jun's written notes paired with the powerpoints was great.
- Professor Nie was always able to accommodate my schedule and meet outside of his regular office hours.

3 - What two or three suggestions would you make to improve this course in the future?

Response Rate 5/12 (41.67%)

- Can't think of any, love this course.
- I would suggest for there to be more problems and questions available to work through so that there can be more opportunities to apply the knowledge and test your skills. I would also maybe suggest more real-life examples like the first week when we were shown COVID statistics, things like that help put things into perspective.
- Jun Nie is a brilliant professor who has a vast amount of knowledge of the economic world. For me, his speed and pace were completely fine but for other students I think it'd be useful to go slower when explaining difficult concepts. The most significant change I would implement would be providing a long test review with different types of practice questions prior to the exams.
- Give more examples/problems before the tests so the content is cemented. Other than that, Professor Jun was a perfect Professor!
- I'd say just presenting the lectures in a more applied way, by using practice problems through out the lecture. And when teaching new concepts explain why they will be relevant or important.

4 - The following questions are specifically for Dedman College of Humanities and Sciences courses.
